896 TENNYSON FAMILY.—A collection of over 40 autograph letters, mostly written to Frederick Tennyson by members of the Tennyson family and their friends, being the whole of the material edited by Mr. Hugh J. Schonfield in his well-known volume, Letters to Frederick Tennyson £50

"The names of many of the writers and personalities to whom allusion is made are familiar to everyone: Arthur Hallam, Bulwer Lytton, Dean Merivale, Fanny Kemble, the Brownings, Thackeray and Alfred Tennyson himself.

In addition, the Poet's mother and almost every member of her large family are represented."—Mr. Schonfield's Preface to the published volume.

Of unique interest and rarity is a signed autograph letter written by Arthur Henry Hallam to Frederick Tennyson [July 8th, 1831] alluding to Alfred Tennyson:

"Poor Alfred has written to me a very melancholy letter. What can be done for him? Do you think he is really very ill in body? His mind certainly is in a distressing state. I wish you, or somebody, would transcribe for me some of his recent poems. Alfred's account of Emily is worse than yours; but it is clear as daylight that change of place and society would do her good."

Another letter written by Hallam to Frederick Tennyson (initialled "A.H.H." with a small piece cut from the inner margin of one sheet, affecting three lines of writing) discusses in detail the financial arrangements for his forthcoming marriage with Emily Tennyson. (Dated Sept. 10th, 1832).

A letter written by Emily Tennyson (first page missing) has this postscript in the hand of Alfred Tennyson:

"Baby is very huge with a beautiful face for a mere babe. His leg and arm I attempted to delineate on a blank part of the letter which alas I find is the place left for the direction. What if your Italians take the delineations to be political.

"P.S.—I have spoilt the leg and arm (as well as I could) with the direction. I wish you could hear him shout. Love to Arthur and all of yours. Your affectionate, ALFRED.

"Cn. Inglefield has called an Arctic promontory Cape Tennyson after me which makes me as proud as Lucifer. So don't let your major-domo look down upon me!—A.T."

A letter from Mary Brotherton (Dec. 13th, 1853) describes a meeting with Mr. and Mrs. Browning, at Rome, and a further meeting with Thackeray and his daughters. Taken as a whole the collection throws valuable light on the private life of the Tennyson family and their circle, as well as having a strong sentimental interest. A copy of Mr. Schonfield's book accompanies the collection.

The writers of the letters are as follows:

Arthur Henry Hallam; Charles Merivale, Dean of Ely; Rev. John Frere; R. J. Tennant; Thomas Rhodes; Charles Tennyson (Turner); J. Mainwaring; Dr. M. Allen; Cecilia Lushing-

- ton; E. L. Lushington; Septimus Tennyson; Edward Bulwer Lytton; Maria, Giulio, Edmund, Matilda, Horatio, Cecilia and Elizabeth Tennyson; George d'Eyncourt; Mary Anne Fytche; Rev. Thomas Bruce; William Brooks; Edmund Lushington; Frances Garden; Emily Tennyson; Alfred Tennyson; Mary Brotherton; Sir Henry Taylor; Emily Jesse; Elizabeth, Matilda and Arthur Tennyson; Walter Ker.
